

Freedom of Movement running club nights and concerts which, as well as getting AFA's ideas across to a wider audience, also brings in the necessary funds for AFA's political work.

The left can bleat on about "the rising tide of fascism" but the truth is that their organisations are incapable of making a difference to the situation. Organisations like the ANL and YRE are recruitment vehicles for the SWP and Militant. They are there to absorb young militants into ineffectual 'revolutionary parties' which for years denied the existence of the fascists. The bosses press recognise this and deliberately hype these liberal campaigns and ignore the massive victories that AFA has scored against the fascists, like the smashing of the neo-nazi Blood and Honour at Waterloo Station in 1992.

The bottom line is: if your not part of an organisation that is regularly 'doing the business' against the fascists, then you can't call yourself an anti-fascist. Red Action is an organisation that is committed to fighting fascism, both ideologically and physically.
